Findings/Faits saillants :

1. Not all residents were treated with courtesy and respect by a co-resident when the resident was agitated and demonstrated responsive behaviours as follows:

1. On a specified date in 2012, when resident #01 hit resident #05 on the head repeatedly with a sippy cup in the dining room.
2. On a specified date in 2012, when resident #01 yelled at residents #03 and #04 and struck their legs with a mobility device.
3. On a specified date in 2012, when resident #01 yelled at resident #02 and had the bathroom door closed on their head
4. On a specified date in 2012, when resident #01 yelled at and struck resident #02 on the right side of the chest.

Each of the incidents identified above were recorded in the residents clinical records and confirmed by staff at the home. [s. 3. (1)]

1. The licensee did not ensure that any plan, policy, protocol, procedure, strategy or system instituted or otherwise put in place is complied with.

The home has a procedure for management of responsive behaviours titled "Responsive Behaviours 09-05-01".

This procedure directs staff regarding "assessment forms (Dementia Observation Scale, Cohen Mansfield Agitation Inventory, Responsive Behaviour Record and tools used by local outreach programs) to be used to fully assess any behaviours identified or witnessed. Forms are to be completed in full with the information obtained in the assessment form integrated into the resident specific plan of care."

Resident #01 was identified to have an increase in responsive behaviours towards other residents during a 3 month period in 2012, with four identified incidents. During this time staff did not follow the "Responsive Behaviour" procedure, as the only behavioural focused assessment tool used by staff at the home, to assess the resident was the "Cohen Mansfield Agitation Inventory" following the last of the four incidents.

Interview with a Registered Nurse and a Registered Practical Nurse confirmed that the home does not consistently use assessment tools to assist in the assessment of residents with responsive behaviours as directed in the procedure. [s. 8. (1)]

Additional Required Actions:
