Findings/Faits saillants :

[LTCHA 2007, S.O. 2007, c.8, s.3(1)4] The licensee of the long term care home did not ensure that the following rights of residents are fully respected and promoted:

4. Every resident has the right to be properly sheltered, fed, clothed, groomed and cared for in a manner consistent with his or her needs.

An identified resident was not properly cared for in a manner consistent with their needs.

In 2012, an identified resident was sitting in bed when they were approached by a personal support worker to prepare them for a transfer out of bed. The resident did not wish to be transferred and responded by saying no and made a hand gesture. The personal support worker took the resident's hand to stop the gesturing and then left the room to get a colleague to assist with the transfer. When the second worker came into the room, the resident was visibly upset and crying. A Registered Nurse (RN) interviewed the resident and was able to conclude that the personal support worker had made contact with the resident's hand and that it hurt. The RN assessed the resident's hand and confirmed an injury.

The employee was identified by the management of the home to have used unintentional excessive force to assist another resident within the last year and was counseled and re-educated at the time of the incident. The employee admitted to the home management staff that they were not aware that they had hurt either resident until it was brought to their attention.

The management of the home conducted an internal investigation and took follow-up action.
