Findings/Faits saillants :

1. An identified resident was not treated with courtesy and respect by an identified PSW on a specific date in November 2011. [LTCHA 2007 section 3 (1) (1)]

As per the identified resident, on a specific date in November 2011, the resident rang to be assisted back to bed. An identified Personal Support Worker (PSW) responded to the call bell. The PSW told the resident it was not time for bed and did not assist the resident back to bed.

The resident rang the call bell a second time. Another PSW responded to the call bell and assisted the resident back to bed. The other PSW then left the resident to finish the collation pass.

After the collation pass, the first identified PSW went to the resident's room. As per the resident, the identified PSW spoke to him/her in a loud, rough voice. The PSW then proceeded to assist the resident with his/her personal care. The resident states that the PSW was rough and while removing the resident's clothing, the PSW ripped one of the resident's articles of clothing.

The resident states that he/she was distraught by the incident and reported it to his/her daughter and the home's Director of Care.

The long-term care home did conduct an internal investigation into the reported incident. It was determined that the resident's clothing was ripped and that the resident was not treated with courtesy and respect.
